Alverno’s Strategic Plan: By the Numbers

506 key stakeholders participated in the strategic-planning process

5 strategic priorities drive the plan

Throughout the 2016–17 academic year, Alverno College celebrated 130 years of educating and empowering women. Assuring the College’s place as one of the few Catholic women’s colleges that thrive today are the deep roots planted by the School Sisters of St. Francis, which our faculty, staff, supporters and partners have sustained through the years.

We remain committed as ever to guiding women to realize their full potential, unleashing a power we see our graduates harness to make the world a better place.

To that end, Alverno President Andrea J. Lee, IHM, has led key stakeholders in the development of a strategic plan that honors and expands our mission. The plan focuses on five key priority areas to meet the needs of the Milwaukee area and to equip our students with the skills that will keep them in demand by employers.

Those priorities, described in this report, are: Academic Excellence and Women’s Leadership, Behavioral and Mental Health, Health Care, K-12 Teachers and Leaders, and the School of Adult Learning and New Initiatives.

This report shares the stories of students and alumnae, as well as our newest dean, to illustrate the priorities of the plan and the passion with which we are pursuing it. Guiding our efforts is a powerfully reimagined mission statement, which not only maintains our founding purpose of educating women but reminds us of the good and great work ahead of us.

Thank you for your support of Alverno College throughout the past year and for your careful tending of our mission and our work. Your contributions not only help the College grow strong, but you are also helping transform the lives of our students and our community.
Alverno College prepares women for lives of personal and professional distinction and meaningful engagement with the world. Alverno extends this mission by offering graduate and adult programs to women and men. Inspired by its Catholic, Franciscan and liberal arts heritage, the College intentionally creates an inclusive community that engages students in active and collaborative learning and fosters academic excellence.

Alverno extends this mission by offering graduate and adult programs to women and men.

Inspired by its Catholic, Franciscan and liberal arts heritage, the College intentionally creates an inclusive community that engages students in active and collaborative learning and fosters academic excellence.
he legendary Japanese swordsman Miyamoto Musashi dispensed wisdom with the same sharp-edged insight with which he wielded his saber: “Perception is strong and sight weak. In strategy it is important to see distant things as if they were close and to take a distanced view of close things.”

It was 130 years ago, so clearly a “distant thing,” that Mother Alexia and Mother Alfons planted the seeds that would become Alverno College. This brave step yielded the mission we embrace today, the education and empowerment of women. But how should we do that, working in a world so stunningly different from the world of our founders?

This became our dominant planning question as we began the work to forge a path for Alverno to make a clear and palpable difference in much the same way we expect our graduates to do. Alverno women, and future generations of them, are why we crafted a forward-looking, mission-driven strategic plan to guide our growth.

Ambitious yet flexible, the Alverno plan seeks to seize new opportunities and adapt to new realities. It is about Alverno’s unique approach to educating undergraduate women, but it is also about shaping graduate, two-year and continuing education programs that allow both women and men to embrace Alverno values and achieve excellence as competent and principled leaders.

The plan builds upon Alverno’s historic strengths, our “distant things,” and yet is clearly tied to current workforce and educational demands of Milwaukee, the region, the nation and the globe. At the absolute heart of Alverno’s plan are our students, who guide each decision we make.

More than a century after our founding mothers established what is now Alverno College, seeds of knowledge, wisdom and hope continue to grow on Alverno’s campus. From faculty, administrators and staff to loyal supporters, trustees and alumnae to our students themselves, countless individuals help this College and its students flourish.

To our faithful and generous supporters who cherish the “distant things” and are eager to see the future we will create, we are humbled by your devotion and more than grateful for your support. Your engagement continues to yield an incredible bounty of alumnae with the right values and right skills for the world.

It’s really quite simple: our plan is to cherish who we are and from where we have come; to do what we do best while looking deeply and critically about how to do it better; to align our work and what we offer the world more closely with the times in which we find ourselves; and, as the School Sisters of St. Francis have always done, to work to serve the world’s most pressing needs.

We absolutely count on you. Thank you so much for being “in it” with us!

We recognize and give thanks for the dedication and contributions of our leaders, administrators, alumnae, faculty and community partners
When she was growing up, Morgan Raddatz’s parents always stressed the importance of education.

When Raddatz arrived at Alverno, she seized every opportunity she could. She volunteered, joined student organizations, worked campus jobs, led a book donation drive for students in Liberia and served as a peer mentor and tutor. Her drive to learn led her to supplement her Communication major with three supports: English, Creative Studies in Writing, and Spanish Language and Culture.

“Alverno gave me the opportunity to expand my education,” she says.

At Alverno, Raddatz found a community of peers and faculty who shared her desire to not only learn more about the world but to also apply those lessons to real life.

“This inspired me to reach out and to ask questions as well as to connect with those around me,” she says.

During her final semester, Raddatz won a competitive internship on the communications team at the Boerke Company, a commercial real estate firm in downtown Milwaukee.

When Raddatz graduated from Alverno with honors in December 2017, she was proud to become the first in her family to achieve that milestone.

“I had an opportunity that not many people in my family have received,” she says. “I want to honor the experiences and sacrifices of my family.”

Raddatz now aspires to pursue a career in public relations. She also hopes to travel and expand her Spanish language skills. With her Alverno degree in hand, she’s confident that her future will be bright.

“My Alverno experience transformed me as an individual and prepared me to tackle any challenge,” she says.

68% of Alverno students are first-generation college students
Alverno transformed me because: it opened my eyes to the positivity and support people can have for one another. The type of environment created by the instructors and students is one I’ll strive to have in any professional school or workplace.

—Donna Zehner, Class of ’19
For 130 years, Alverno has encouraged and guided women to realize their full potential and achieve their dreams. Through a collaborative and hands-on education, and through the dedication of faculty, staff and College supporters, our students have a bedrock of support as they aim high.

Alverno’s strategic plan builds upon this longstanding commitment to excellence by expanding and adding opportunities for students’ academic and professional development. In doing so, the College will attract high-achieving students and prepare all students for futures in a competitive marketplace.

In the late 1970s, Kiyoko Toyama ’81 was raising two sons and working part-time in a medical office, where she met female patients with careers of their own.

“I should be doing that,” she remembers thinking, but she wasn’t sure how — until she discovered Alverno. Upon graduation, Toyama put her Business and Management degree to work at the U.S. headquarters of a Japanese manufacturer. She rose to president in 1999, a role she held for 13 years before her retirement.

“Alverno taught me to be independent and confident,” she says, adding that she now advises women to “be confident in your ability and forge on with what you want to accomplish.”

Armed with such confidence is Alverno student Donna Zehner, an aspiring doctor. The Biology and Chemistry double major plays basketball, serves as a tutor and is a residence hall adviser in the Center for Academic Excellence wing.

As a child, Zehner says she never questioned whether she could pursue her dreams. She now realizes that isn’t the case for every woman. “At Alverno, they work really hard to empower you. I didn’t understand at first why that was important,” she says. “Once I heard others’ stories, it opened my eyes.”

As a result, Zehner launched a student group to “help women set a goal and achieve it. I want women to feel empowered to do anything.”

Strategic Initiatives Underway

- Expand the Center for Academic Excellence’s reach as it provides a learning community and facilitates student-faculty research projects and leadership development
- Expand competitive internship offerings for students
- Advance partnerships that allow students to earn dual degrees in traditionally male-dominated fields, such as math and computer science

Women held 20.2% of board seats at Fortune 500 companies in 2016, while minority women held 3.8%.

Alverno transformed me because: I learned how to see life in a different way.

—Monica Perez '15
Monica Perez ’15 knew she wanted a career that would allow her to help people. But it wasn’t until she learned about Alverno’s Master of Science in Community Psychology program that she found her path.

Perez is now a licensed professional counselor in training at Tree of Life Counseling Center in Milwaukee. A native Spanish speaker, she provides bilingual counseling — meeting a significant community need.

“There’s still a big stigma. For most of my clients who are Latinos, the first time I see them is their first time going to counseling. They’re really nervous, and they don’t know what to expect,” she says.

Through her experiences at Alverno and beyond, Perez has learned how to educate her clients and to help them feel comfortable with caring for themselves. She works to establish a rapport to ensure that her clients get the most out of their sessions.

“I know I’m helping clients when we can build a strong therapeutic relationship,” she says. “It’s so rewarding to see their growth. I strongly believe that when they are able to experience a safe place — where there is no judgment, but I can still challenge them with love — there is a shift in their self-acceptance.”

Alverno has solid roots in the mental health community thanks to such groundbreaking areas of study as Music Therapy and Community Psychology.

As demand for mental health services rises and the profession confronts a labor shortage, the College is growing to meet these crucial needs. Alverno will apply its uniquely community-focused lens, which considers an individual holistically, to a new bachelor’s degree in Social Work and new graduate programs in Music Therapy and School Psychology. These programs will partner with Alverno’s other schools, creating an interdisciplinary approach that reflects how mental health services are being provided today.

Approximately 1 in 5 Milwaukeeans has been diagnosed with or received treatment for a mental health condition.

Alverno transformed me because: For the first time I felt like school was “home.” I learned new things in new ways and amazed myself with what I could accomplish.
—Linda Bay ’01 ’04 ’07
Alverno will continue to prepare highly skilled health professionals and leaders to thrive in a constantly evolving field. Building upon nearly 90 years of educating nurses to make a difference in Milwaukee and beyond, the College’s initiatives will ensure that Alverno graduates remain in demand.

One key goal will be introducing new specialties and advanced leadership training for nurses and expanding Alverno’s first doctorate program, the Doctorate of Nursing Practice.

Recognizing the need for health professionals doesn’t stop at nurses, Alverno will also expand and add non-nursing programs at the undergraduate and graduate levels. That includes growing a pre-Physical Therapy undergraduate major and launching a graduate level Physician Assistant program.

“Don’t stop until you get a D in your degree,” clinical nurse specialist Linda Bay ’01 ’04 ’07 remembers one of her mentors telling her. Bay says she would share this with other nurses before taking her own advice, enrolling in the first cohort of Alverno’s Doctorate of Nursing Practice.

Bay, who earned her bachelor’s and master’s degrees in Nursing from Alverno, enjoys the lifelong friendships she has made, and continues to make, here. She also appreciates the opportunity to learn from the experiences of faculty and classmates, not to mention a sense of empowerment.

“I already feel the urge to change the world, and I know the education at Alverno will provide me the tools to do so,“ she says. “The future of nursing and of health care is changing at an ever increasing pace, and the DNP from Alverno will help me to be the change I want to see for my patients, my hospital, my community and the world.”

Strategic Initiatives Underway

- Add a Geriatric Nurse Practitioner program to equip more advanced-practice nurses with the skills needed to serve an aging population
- Offer nursing alternatives, such as Kinesiology (pre-Physical Therapy) at the undergraduate level and a Physician Assistant program at the graduate level
- Continue growing the Doctorate of Nursing Practice program launched in January 2017

Alverno transformed me because: It has made me become more aware of my place in the world and my purpose.

—Emerald Summers, Class of ’18
Emerald Summers has always been at home in the classroom. Growing up, she would play teacher in her mother’s classroom. During the summer, her mother would keep Summers and her brother busy with workbook activities because “she didn’t want us to stop learning.”

Summers, as a matter of fact, hasn’t stopped learning and now aspires to become a teacher herself. She has fully embraced the Alverno drive for growth, viewing her successes and challenges as equally important stages of her journey. She has even retaken a class several times until she truly felt she had mastered the content.

“Alverno has showed me how to push and how to commit to what I really want in life,” she says.

Drawn to Alverno by the fact that her favorite teachers were alumnae, Summers can’t wait to join them when she graduates this year.

“The things that they learned at Alverno, they poured into me,” she says. “Now I’m going to be able to do the same thing.”
Alverno transforms the community because: Our culture of compassionate leadership, coupled with our constant evolution, prepares our graduates for professional distinction in a rapidly changing world.

—Carole Chabries
To achieve its highest ambitions, Alverno has created the School of Adult Learning and New Initiatives. Led by Dean Carole Chabries, the new school serves as a catalyst and as a responsive and nimble partner to Alverno’s other schools.

In line with Alverno’s history of evolving to meet the changing needs of its students, the new school is home to existing degree-completion programs, as well as new online and hybrid programs, certificates and digital badges. The school’s status as a pioneer is already cemented with Alverno’s participation in a selective program to ensure college graduates master the skills that employers demand, which aligns with Alverno’s internationally recognized 8 Abilities.

Carole Chabries immediately knew Alverno was special. “People believe in the Alverno way, and I am really excited to be a part of that,” says the College’s newest dean.

The School for Adult Learning and New Initiatives will “accelerate the innovation that’s happening” across Alverno’s existing schools, Chabries says. For instance: finding new and creative ways to teach in online and hybrid settings while being true to the abilities-based curriculum.

“This approach will help us develop new avenues for students to earn degrees or certifications,” she says. “It will also guide our work of expanding academic offerings in response to the needs of our Milwaukee community and the wider region.”

Such innovation will be faithful to Alverno’s mission, especially in a competitive higher education landscape where women comprise the majority of students. The new school will further advance this mission by meeting students where they are at. It will also ensure Alverno’s adaptability to rapidly changing workforce needs at both the undergraduate and graduate levels.

“The more creative we can be in offering multiple pathways to a meaningful credential, the more support we’ll be able to offer women and men as they strive toward their personal and professional goals,” Chabries says.

Alverno transformed me because: I now have the confidence to use my intuition and leadership skills to tackle real-life business problems. I can’t imagine how this personal and professional evolution could have happened anywhere else.

—Pa Ying Lee, Class of ’19
The Alverno Silver Circle Society recognizes those persons who have given to Alverno College for 10 or more consecutive years. Their continuous giving indicates their strong commitment to the College and its students.

HERITAGE SOCIETY

The Alverno Heritage Society recognizes those who have designated the College for support through a bequest, charitable annuity, charitable remainder trust, life insurance policy or personal residence. Through their thoughtfulness, these individuals will make a lasting impact on future generations of students.
